MR. BRYAN'S SPEECH

He Defines at Length His Party's Policy.

DEFENDS THE CHICAGO PLATFORM

And Replies to the Attacks Made Upon It-Money the Paramount Issus-No Claim Made To Reconstruct Society.

New York, Aug. 13 .-- The following is the speech delivered by W. J. Bryan at Madison Square garden in response to the address formally notifying him of his nomination by the Chicago

Mr. Chairman, gentlemen of the committee and fellow citizens: I shall at a future day and in a formal letter, accept the nomination which is now tendered by the notification committee, and I shall at that time touch upon the issues presented by the platform. It is fitting, however, that at this time, in the presence of those here assembled, I speak at some length in regard to the campaign upon which We are now entering. We do not underestimate the forces arrayed against us, nor are we unmindful of the importance of the struggle in which we are engaged, but, relying for saccess upon the righteousness of our cause, we shall defend with all possible vigor the positions taken by our party. We are not surprised that some of our opponents, is the absence of betterargument, resort to abusive epithets, but they may rest assured that no language, however violent, no invectives, however vehement, will lead us to depart a single hair's breadth from the course marked out by the national convention. It has been charged by menstanding high in business and political circles that our platform is a menace to private security and public Salviv: and it has been asserted that those whom I have the honor, for the time being, to represent, not only meditate an attack upon the rights of property, but are the foes both of social order and national honor.

Not To Reconstruct Society. Those who stand upon the Chicago piatform are prepared to make known and to defeuded every motive which influences them, every purpose which animates them and every hope which inspires them. They understand the genius of our institutions, they are staunch supporters of the form of government under which we live, and they build their faith upon foundations laid by the fathers. Andrew Jackson has stated, with admirable clearness, both the duty and the sphere of government. He said: "Distinctions in society will always exist under every just government. Equality of talents. of education or of wealth cannot be produced by human institutions. In the full enjoynment of the gifts of Heaven and the fruits of superior industry, economy and virtue, every man is equally entitled to protection by law." We yield to none in our devotion to the doctrine just enunicated. Our campaign has not for its object the reconstruction of society. We cannot insure to the vicious the fruits of a virtuous life; we would not invade the home of the provident in order to supply the wants of the spend-thrift; we do not propose to transfer the rewards of industry to the lap of indolence. Property is and will remain the stimulus to endeavor and the compensation for toil. We believe, as asserted in the Deciaration of Independence, that all men are created equal; but that does not mean that all men are or can be equal in possessions, in ability or in merit; it simply means that all shall stand equal before the law, and that government official shall not, in making, construing or enforcing the law, discriminate between citizens. I assert that property rights, as well as the rights of persons, are safe in the hands of the common people.

Equal Rights for All.

We are not surprised to find arrayed against us those who are the beneficiaries of government favoritismthey have read our platform. Nor are we surprised to learn that we must in this campaign face the hostility of those who find a pecuniary adva ntage in advocating the doctrine of non-interference when great aggregations of wealth are trespassing upon the rights of individuals. We welcome such opposition—it is the highest endorsement which could be bestowed upon us. It is not the wish of the general public that trusts should spring into existence and override the weaker members of society. Those who stand upon the Chicago platform believe that the government should not only avoid wrongdoing, but that it should also preventwrongdoing; and they believe that the law should be enforced alike against all enemies of the public weal. They do not excuse petit larceny, but they declare that grand larceng is equally a crime; they do not defend the occupation of the highwayman who robs the unsuspecting travelor, but they include among the transgressors those who, who through the more polite and less hazardous means of legislation, appropriate to their own use the proceeds of the toil of others. The comreandment, "Thou shalt not steal," nundered from Sinai and reiterated in the legislation of all nations, is no respecter of persons. No government is worthy of the name which is not able to protect from every arm uplifted for his injury the humblest citizen who lives beneath the flag.

Income Tax Plank Defended.

The Chicego platform has been condemned by some because it dissents from an opinion rendered by the supreme court declaring the income tax law unconstitutional. Our critics even go so far as to apply the name anarchist to those who stand upon that plank of the platform. It must be remembered that we expressly recognize the binding force of that decision so long as it stands as a part of the law of the land There is in the platform no suggestion of an attempt to dispute the authority of the supreme court. The party is simply pledged to use "all the constitotional power which remains after that decision, or which may come from its reversal by the court as it may bereafter be constituted." Is there any disloyalty in that pledge? While the money question overshadows all other questions in importance. I desire it distinctly understood that I shall offer no apology for the income tax plank of the Chicago platform. At present the expenses of the federal government, collected through internal revenue taxes and import duties, are especially burdensome upon the poorer classes of society. A law which collects from some citizens more than their share of the taxes and collects from other citizens less than their share, is simply, an indirect means of transferring one man's property to another man's pocket, and while the proprocess may be quite satisfactory to the men who escape just taxation, it can never be satisfactory to those who are overburdened. The last income tax law, with its exemption provisions. when considered in connection with other methods of taxation in force, was not unjust to the possessors of large incomes, because they were not compelied to pay a total federal tax greater than their share. The income tax is not new, nor is it based upon hostility to the rich.

The Money Question.

Now let me ask you to consider the paramount question of this campaign -the money question. It is scarcely necessary to defend the principal of bimetallism. No national party during the entire history of the United States has ever declared against it, and no party in this campaign has had the temerity to oppose it. Three parties-the democratic, populist and silver parties-have not only declared for bimetallism, but have outlined the specific legislation necessary to restore silver to its ancient position by the side of gold. The republican platform expressly declares that bimetallism is desirable when it pledges the republican party to aid in securing it as soon as the assistance of certain foreign nations can be obtained. Those who represented the minority sentitiment in the Chicago convention opposed the free coinage of silver by the United States by independent action on the ground that, in their fadgment, it 'would retard or entirely prevent the establishment of international bimetallism, to which the efforts of the government should be steadily directed." When they asserted that the efforts of the government should be steaming directed toward the establishment of international bimetallism, they condemned monometallism. The gold standard has been weighed in the balance and found wanting. Take from it the powerful support of the money-owning and the money-changing classes and it cannot stand for one day in any nation of the world. It was astened upon the United States without discussion before the people, and its friends have never yet been willing to risk a verdict before the voters upon that issue.

Are They Sincers?

There can be no sympathy or cooperation between the advocates of a universal gold standard and the advocates of bimetailism. Between bimetallism-whether independent or international-and the gold standard there is an impassable gulf. Is this quadrennial agitation in favor of international bimetallism conducted in good faith, or do our opponents really desire to maintain the gold standard permanently? If they are in fact desirous of securing bimetallism, we may expect them to point out the evils of a gold standard and defend bimetallism as a system. If, on the other hand. they are bending their energies toward the permanent establishment of a gold standard under cover of a declaration in favor of international bimetallism. I am justified in suggesting that honest money cannot be expreted at the hands of those who deal dishonestly with the American people.

What Is Honest Money? What is the test of honesty in money? It must certainly be found in the purchasing power of the dollar. An absolutely honest dollar would not vary in its general purchasing power; it would be absolutely stable when measured by average prices. A dollar which increases in purchasing power is just as dishonest as a dollar which decreases in purchasing power. Prof. Laughlin, now of the University of Chicago, and one of the highest goldstandard authorities, in his work on bimetallism not only admits that gold value, but expressly asserts "that known law of commerce is the law of there is no such thing as a standard of value for future payments, either in gold or silver, which remains absooutely invariable." He even suggests that a multiple standard, wherein the unit is "based upon the selling prices of a number of articles of general consumption," would be a more just standard than either gold or silver, or both, because "a long-time contract would thereby be paid at its maturity by the same purchasing power as was given in the beginning." It cannot be successfully claimed that monometallism or bimetallism, or any other system, gives a just standard of value.

Insurance Policies and Savings Banks.

Our opponents have made a special appeal to those who hold fire and life insurance policies, but those policy holders know that, since the total premiums received exceed the total losses paid, a rising standard must be of more benefit to the companies than to the policy holders. Much solicitude has been expressed by our opponents for the depositors in savings banks. They constantly parade before these legositors the advantages of a gold atandard, but these appeals will be in vain, because savings bank depositors know that under a gold standard there is increasing danger that they will lose their deposits because of the inability of the banks to collect their assets; and they still further know that, if the gold standard is to continue indefinitely, they may be compelled to withdraw their deposits in order to pay living expenses. It is only necessary to note the increasing number of failures in order to know that a gold standard is ruinous to merchants and manufacturers. These business men do not make their profits from the people from whom they borrow money, but from the people to whom they sell their goods. If the people cannot buy, retailers cannot sell, and if retailers cannot sell, wholesals merchants and manufacturers must go into bankruptcy. Salaries in business occupations depend upon business conditions, and the gold standard both lesseus the amount and threatens the permanency of such salaries.

Leaners Instead of Borrowers.

If it is asserted, as it is constantly asserted, that the gold standard will enable us to borrow money from abroad. I reply that the restoration of bimetallism will restore the parity between money and property, and thus permit an era of prosperity which will enable the American people to become loaners of money instead of perpetual borrowers. Even the holders of fixed investments, though they gain an advantage from the appreciation of the dollar, certainly see the injustice of the legislation which gives them this advantage over those whose-incomes depend upon the value of property and products. If the holders of fixed investments will not listen to arguments based upon justice and equity. I appeal to them to consider the interests | which is not needed elsewhere: but if of posterity. We do not live for our-

No New Experiment.

As against the maintenance of a gold standard, either permanently or until other nations can be united for its overthrow, the Chicago platform presents a clear and emphatic demand for the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 15 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation. We are not asking that a new experiment be tried: we are insisting upon a return to a financial policy approved by the experience of history and supported by ail the prominent stetesmen of our nation from the days of the first president down to 1873. When we ask that our annts be opened to the free and unlimited coinage of silver into full legal tender money, we are simply asking that the same mint privileges be accorded to silver that are now accorded Greenbacks and Treasury Notes.

The retirement of the greenback and treasury notes would not protect the treasury, because the same policy which now leads the secretary of the reasury to redeem all government onner in gold, when gold is demanded, wai require the redemption of all ailver domars and silver certificates in gold, if the greenbacks and treasury notes are withdrawn from circulation. More than this, if the government should retire its paper and throw upon ne banks the necessity of furnishing oin redemption, the banks would ex--reise the right to furnish either gold r silver. In other words, they would xercise the option, just as the government ought to exercise it now. The overnment must either exercise the and to redeem its obligations in siler when silver is more convenient, or must retire all silver and silver cermates from circulation and leave toing but gold as legal tender money. Are our opponents willing to where a financial system which will arry out their policy to its legitimate orclusion, or will they continue to mic their designs in ambiguous cornses? We contend that free and on mated coinage by the United States who raise the bullion value of silver to s coinage value, and tous make silver Thian worth $1.29 per ounce in gold are heat the world. This proposiim in keeping with natural laws, supply and demand. We recognize this law and build our argument upon t. We apply this law to money when we say that a reduction in the volume of money will raise the purchasing power of the dollar; we also apply the law of supply and demand to silver when we say that a new demand for silver created by law will raise the price of silver bullion. Gold and silver are different from other commodities, in that they are limited in quantity. The Supply of Silver.

Because gold and silver are limited, both in the quantity now in hand and in annual production, it follows that legislation can fix the ratio between them. Any purchaser who stands ready to take the entire supply of any given article at a certain price can prevent that article from falling below that price. So the government can fix a price for gold and silver by creating a demand greater than the supply. The only question upon which international bimetallists and independent bimetallists differ is: Can the United States by the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the present legal ratio create a demand for silver which, taken in connection with the demand already in existence, will be sufficient to utilize all the silver that will be presented at the mints? They agree in their defense of the bimetallic principle, and they agree in unalterable opposition to the gold standard. International bimetallists cannot complain that free coinage gives a benefit to the mine owner, because international bimetallism gives to the owner of silver all the advantages offered by independent bimetallism at the same ratio. They must rest their opposition upon one ground only, namely: That the supply of silver available for coinage is too large to be utilized by the United States.

We Can Fix the Price.

In discussing this question we must consider the capacity of our people to use silver and the quantity of silver which can come to our mints. It must be remembered that we live in a country only partially developed. Now, how much silver can come here? Not the coined silver of the world, because almost all of it is more valuable at this time in other lands than it will be at our mints under free coinage. If our mints are opened to free and unlimited coinage at the present ratio; merchandise silver cannot come here, because the labor applied to it has made it worth more in the form of merchandise than it will be at our mints. We cannot even expect all of the annual product of silver, because India, China, Japan and Mexico and all other silver-using countries must satisfy their annual needs from the annual product; the arts will require a large amount, and the gold standard countries will need a considerable quantity for subsidiary coinage. We will be required to coin only that we stand ready to take and utilize all of it, other nations will be compelled to buy at any price which we may fix. Our opponents cannot ignore the fact that gold is now going abroad in spite of all legislation intended to prevent it, and no silver is being coined to take its place. Not only is gold going abroad now, but it must continue to go abroad as long af the present financial policy is adhered to, unless we continue to borrow from across the Fifty-cent Dollars.

Perhaps the most persistent misrepresentation that we have to meet is the charge that we are advocating the payment of debts in fifty-cent dollars. At the present time and under present laws, a silver dollar, when melted, loses nearly half its value, but that will not be true when we again establish a mint price for silver and leave no surplus silver upon the market to drag down the price of bullion. Under bimetallism silver bullion will be worth as much as silver coin, just as gold bullion is now worth as much as gold coin, and we believe that a silver dollar will be worth as much as a gold dollar. The charge of repudiation comes with poor grace from those who are seeking to add to the weight of existing debts by legislation which makes money dearer, and who conceal their designs against the general wolfare under the euphonious preteuse that they are upholding public credit and national honor. In answer to the charge that gold will go abroad, it must be remembered that no gold can leave this country until the owner of the gold receives something in return for it which he would rather have.

Honest differences of opinion have always existed, and ever will exist, as to the legislation best calculated to promote the public weal; but, when it is seriously asserted that this nation must bow to the dictation of other nations and accept the policies which they insist upon, the right of welfgovernment is assailed, and until that question is settled all other questions are insignificant.

Appeal To Citizens of New York.

Citizens of New York; I have traveled from the centre of the continent to the seaboard that I might, in the very beginning of the campaign, bring you greeting from the people of the west and south and assure you that their desire is not to destroy but to build up. They invite you does not remain absolutely stable in but in definince of them. The best I to accept the principles of a living | wheel since last Sunday.

faith rather than listen to those who preach the gospel of despair and advise endurance of the ills you have. The advocates of free coinage believe that, in striving to secure the immediate restoration of bimetallism, they are laboring in your behalf as well as in their own behalf. A few of your people may prosper under present conditions, but the permanent welfare of New York rests upon the producers of wealth. This great city is built upon the commerce of the nation and must suffer if that commerce is impaired. You cannot sell unless the people have money with which to buy, and they cannot obtain the money with which to buy unless they are able to sell their products at remunerative prices. Production of wealth goes before the exchange of wealth: those who create must secure a profit before they have anything to share with others. You cannot afford to join the moneychangers in supporting a financial policy which, by destroying the purchasing power of the products of toil, must in the end discourage the creation of wealth.

Our Country's Mission.

I ask, I expect, your co-operation. It is true that a few of your financiers would fashion a new figure—a figure representing Columbia, her hands bound fast with fetter of gold and her face turned toward the east, appealing for assistance to those who live bewond the sea-but this figure can never express your idea of this nation. You will rather turn for inspiration to the heroic statue which guards the entrance to your city—a statue as patrictic in conception as it is colossal in proportions. It was the gracious gift of a sister republic and stands upon a pedestal which was built by the American people. That statue-Liberty enlightening the world-is emblematic of the mission of our nation among the nations of the earth. With a government which derives its powers from the consent of the governed, secures to all the people freedom of conscience. freedom of thought and freedom of speech, guarantees equal rights to all and promises special privileges to none, the United States should be an exampie in all that is good and the leading spirit which has for its object the uplifting of the human race.

Saveral United States Senators and Congressmen Present-Mr. Bryan's Voice Hoarse and Me Showed Sighs of Fatigue-Sewall's Address.

New York, Aug. 13.-William Jennings Bryan and Arthur Sewall were formally notified last night that they were the choice of the democratic party for the highest offices in the gift of the people of the United States. The occasion was one to which the entire country had been looking forward for many weeks and interest had risen to the boiling point through repeated promises and hints that the speech the young Nebraskan would deliver would exceed his effort before the Chicago convention. Mr. Bryan, himself. had been partly responsible for the feverish feeling generated among the people. Only the other day, when a crowd of enthusiasts gathered at a station along the route of his journey from Lincoln to New York, had importuned him for a few words, he had answered: "Read the newspapers Thursday morning and you will have something worth hearing." Men and women poured into the vast auditorium through many inlets. They came in droves, in sections, and in orderly marching step. The opening of the doors was followed by a hurrying, scurrying rush of feet, and in they came, shouting, jumping, moving, pushing, every one intent on reaching the places best available to hear and see the speakers. In the great rush for admittance the police were at times forced to use their cluba to prevent women and children from being trampled under foot, and the crush was so great that several women fainted and were carried away in ambulances. Seated on the platform in the rear of the rostrum were the members of the notification committee and and other distinguished democrats. These included Senators Stewart, Blanchard, Camden, Blackburn, Tillman, Pasco, and a number of congress. men. In the boxes were seated Mrs. Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Bland, Mrs. Gov. Stone and many others. Mrs. Bryan was recognized as she entered the box and the audience went wild, cheering her for fully five minutes. The principal actor of the evening entered the hall by a private entrance unknown to the crowd outside But when he stepped on the stand and was recognized by many in the audience a great cheer went up. "Bryan, Bryan, Bryan!" was the shout of those who knew him, and as others in the crowd realized that the hero of the evening had come the cheering became louder and louder. At 8:15 o'clock Senator Jones of Arkansas called the meeting to order. Elliots Danforth was made the chairman of the meeting. Mr. Danforth told the people that he knew they did not want a speech, and he was not going to disappoint them. He closed by presenting Gov. Wm. H. Stone of Missouri chairman of the committee on notifications. There were more cheers. He then gave notification to Messra. Bryan and Sewall of their nomination, Although the cheering thousands in the hall were hot of body and hoarse of throat, they rose as one man when Chairman Danforth stepped forward and introduced Mr. Bryan. Then came a wild demonstration. The band struck up a lively air and added to the din. Mr. Bryan held up his hand for silence. It was like an incentive to yell louder. The andience finally became quiet enough for Mr. Bryan to be heard and he began his speech. His voice was firm, but it showed signs of hoarseness. He was often interrupted with applause, and this seemed to annoy him, as he showed sighs of fatigue. (The main points of Mr. Bryan's speech are printed in another column of this paper.) Arthur Sawall's Speech.

When Mr. Bryan concluded, after speaking an hour and forty minutes, there was another demonstration, but it was brief, the audience showing fatigue from the heat of the hall, and they began to retire. Gov. Stone then in a few words notified Arthur Sewall of his nomination. Mr. Sewall, after thanking the committee for the houor conferred upon him, said: "Our party and, we beheve, a great majority of the Ameria can people are convinced that the legislation of '73, demonstizing silver, was a wrong inflicted upon our country which should and must be righted. We believe that the single gold standard has rendered our monetary system unsafe. We believe that we need and must have the broad and expanding foundation of both gold and suver to support a monetary system strong and stable, capable of meeting the demands of a growing country and an industrious, energetic and enterprising people, and that will protect us from the fluctuations of to-day, so disastrous to every business and industry of the land. We demand the free comage of silver, the opening of our n, ats to both money metals without discrimination

DEAF MUTES ARE PROFANE.

They Swear with the Wave of the Hand with the Greatest of Ease.

Several frantic passes of the hand in front of a companion's face, and a man who never had spoken a word and never will speak a word had sworn at the other as plainly tas if the articulate words had been shouted. It is comething of a puzzle to many how persons who cannot hear a sound acquire a profane vocabulary, but the solution is easy. The average deaf mute, educated by the most approved methods, can tell what a person is saying by the movement of his lips, provided they be visible. Deaf mutes who can read the movement of the lips or the sign language study the Bible, and in consequence they are as familiar with the phrase consigning sinners to everlasting perdition as are those gifted with speech and hearing.

Following this line of argument, one of the most successful teachers of the deaf and dumb in this city said recently: "It is not at all difficult to see how the deaf and dumb learn the use of profanity. It is a strange thing, perhaps, but they rarely make their profane signs except under circumstances which provoke any ordinary person to the use of projanity. On the other hand, deaf mutes vary in temperament as widely as other people, and where one has a seemingly complete vocabulary of profanity, others seldom or never give expression to such sign language.".

Said another instructor: "It is something which we cannot explain any more than can parents, as a rule, tell how their little children, brought up among all the refining influences of home, learn to swear almost before they can talk plainly. Like other thingwhich we have taught, the pupils pick up profanity in the streets from seeing men swear at one another, and when one learns the use of profanity the others soon pick it up."

There is no greater authority in the country upon the subject of deaf mutes than Rev. Thomas Gallaudet, who has been a preacher to and teacher of those without speech or hearing for half a century. His father, Thomas M Gallaudet, in 1817 founded at Hartford, Conn., the first school for deaf mutes in this country, and in 1859 Rev. Thomas Gallaudet began his mission work among them.

Dr. Gallaudet said, when asked about deaf mutes and their ways: "Aside from their inability to speak or hear, deaf-mutes are in no wise different from other persons. They have the same feelings and the same passions, and in their way express themselves just as forcibly as those who speak and hear. As a matter of fact the sign language used by these people is, in many cases. more expressive than any spoken words, and in cases of anger the deafmutes find no difficulty in expressing themselves or making those with whom they are angry understand exactly what is meant.

"To express sorrow for anyone the deaf-mute will assume a sorrowful countenance, and rub his hand over his heart in a circle, meaning thereby that sorrow is grinding his heart. In anger what is more expressive than an angry countenance and the clinched hands shaken above the head?

"The sign language for deaf-mutes was invented about 150 years ago by Abbe De l'Eppe, a teacher in a French school. He noticed the signs which the childen made to each other and understood. He elaborated these signs and as a result what is known as the manual sign language was evolved. The oral system, or that of understanding by means of watching the lips of the speaker, was a late invention. There are to-day between 75 and 80 schools in this country for the instruction of the deaf and dumb. There is also a college for them at Washington, D. C. Most of the schools teach what is known as the combination system, which is both the oral and manual systems combined. There is a church mission in this city for deaf-mutes and the Gallaudet Home for Deaf Mutes, on the Hudson river, just below Poughkeepsie."-N. Y. Recorder.

THE CHIEF'S DOG.

Magician McAllister's Trick Cost the Poor Erute His Life.

Nothing so completely mystifies an Indian as to witness the operations of some itinerant sleight-of-hand performer, many of whom find their way into the sparsely settled portions of the northwest, where they are always sure to reap a good harvest. Prof. McAllister, the magician, once visited a camp of River Crows on the Yellowstone, and after extracting various packs of cards and other articles from the ears, necks and noses and garments of the astonished Indians, was invited to a big feast of roast dog and other delicacies. Chief Two Belly was so impressed with the great medicine powers of the professor that he took him to his daughter, Miss Wicista-Neeta (meaning Wild Cat) and offered her for a wife at the low price of two ponies. The feast and daughter were both declined, but as McAllister was leaving the tepee he spied a lean, yellow cur. He asked Chief Two Belly how much he would take for the dog, at the same time stroking the brute down the back to his tail length and each time taking a handful of money from the end of the tail.

"Him very valuable dog," said McAllister, picking a coin out of the dog's eye and another out of his nose. "Two ponies for him, clief?"

The Indians, with eves as big as saueers, stood in awe and astonishment, and shook their heads. After McAllister had gone they carried the poor dog and, pointing to the hearse, asked: down to the river side and cut him open, but the goose had no golden egg, and they went slowly back to camp as completely dumfounded and as solemn as human beings can possibly be .- Buffalo

Their Game Differs in Many Details from the Regular Oue.

Prof. R. B. Huntoon, of the Kentucky school, describing baseball among the blind, says: The baseball game differs. of course, in many of its details from the regular garies. The diamond is not of regulation size, but it is of regulation form. The distance between bases is but 40 feet. The fielders are stationed the same as in the National league game, with the exception that there is a right shortstop, thus making ten men to a side. In the outfield, in public games, there is an uniimited number of players, each taking a turn at the bat, first moving up one position whenever a batsman is put out.

The catcher sits on the ground, well back from the home plate, and, to guard against injury, he wears a mask and a chest protector. His position is such that when a pitcher delivers a ball it strikes the ground just between the knees and is taken on the short bound.

The batsman takes his position at the plate with a heavy flat bat, somewhat like those used in cricket. The umpire, who must be a man of unim-Laired vision, calls upon the pitcher to get ready, and then clearly sings out: "One, two, three!" At the word three the pitcher must loyally deliver the ball. He pitches in the slow, underhand way peculiar to the game 25 or 30 years ago, the idea being to deliver a ball that can be hit by the batsman, who, standing there in the darkness, with a sharpened sense of hearing and a wonderful conception of the time that must clapse before the ball reaches him, is prepared to strike.

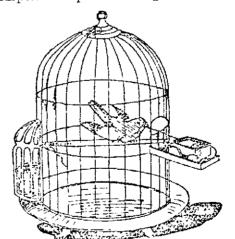

If the batsman should miss the ball bounces into the catcher's lap, and is returned to the pitcher by a single toss with a precision that is wonderful. When the ball is batted the umpire calls out quickly to the fielder in whose direction it is traveling, and he, guided by a sense of hearing, either catches the ball or follows it in its course through the grass. Six strikes are an out. In fielding any number of bounds are permitted. If the batted ball is a "hot liner" and traveling straight for an infielder's head, the umpire shouts a warning, and in such cases the player ducks or falls to the tuft. It is possible, in fact the ball is frequently rielded to first in time to put out the runner. When throwing to first the assisting player, who is guided by the voice of the batsman, calculates the distance with nicety and throws the ball so that it strikes the ground a few vards in front of the batsman. The latter hears it coming and usually gets it without further assistance. Running lases was formerly a difficult thing. There were then three trees on the diamond, toward which the runner can with outstretched hands. Bags have since been substituted for bases, and the runner is guided by the voice of the batsman, who is required to shout "First, first, first!" In like manner the other bags are won. Once on a base the runner is pretty sure to get home, unless his side dies at the home plate. Six outs put a side out .- Boston Transcript.

WORK FOR THEIR FOOD. Canaries Which Afford Lots of Fun to

New York Children. In the big window of a fashionable barber's shop uptown there are several queerly-made bird cages, in which live the yellowest of yellow canaries. Attached to each of the cages, and projecting from their sides, are flat pieces of brass, on which slide up and down tiny little wagons filled with seed. When the birds need a meal, they pull a string fastened to the fronts of these little carts, and drag them up the inclined brass plane within reach. After the canaries have had their fill they let go the cords, and the small carts slide back to their buffers, outside the cage. When water is needed the birds are compelled to pull on a long cord, which draws up a miniature bucket, from which they drink, and then, loosening their hold, the water pail drops down to the lottom of the cage. You see, these birds have been taught to work for their meals, and they seem to enjoy the labor immensely.

A growd of children is always gathered in front of the barber's window, eagerly watching every movement of the birds, and exclaiming with delight. when they are about lifting their food within easy reach of their bills.-N. Y. Recorder.

SPOILED THE SPEECHES. Disastrous Effect of Foolish Questions Upon Congressional Oratory.

There are times when the question or cemark of a persistent interrupter will destroy the effect of a speech and discourage the orator almost to the point of breaking down, says the Troy Times. When Bryan, of Nebraska, in the Fiftythird congress, was in the midst of a rhetorical climax and with arms uplifted was gushing a very familiar line, the house was convulsed by the question of Walker, of Massachusetts: "Who wrote that?" The whole thing was so ridiculous that it was five minutes before Bryan could go on. Here is another: Thomas Bartlett, of Vermont, was renowned for his flights of elaborate rhetorical oratory, and a scat in congress was the special goal of his ambition. When he was elected a story of how he had been silenced by an audience of college boys got around, and on the occasion of the new member's first appearance the house was prepared to receive him in anything but a serious spirit. Rising to indorse a proposition which had just been vigorously attacked be began to declaim impressively: "Sir, were it not for the rules of the house I would pour upon the opponents of this measure the vials of my wrath-" He got no farther. Mr. Polk, of Tennessee, was upon his feet in a moment moving, with every appearance of eager interest, "that the rules be suspended and the gentleman allowed to pour!" Such a disconcerting burst of laughter followed that the unfortunate orator could only subside wrathfully into silence and his seat.

FORGOT HIS NECKTIE

Embarrassing Situation of a Young Man Out West.

In these days of cheap neckwear a man is poor indeed who cannot afford a large collection of ties. There is one young man in this city, however, says the Denver Times, who would have willingly paid five times the cost of a eravat, if necessary, a few days ago. He is a genius in his way, and, like most of his tribe, requires a guardian. It was on a bright, warm morning, not long since, that he sauntered from his home, just about shopping time, and in his absent-minded way wandered downtown. As he walked along Sixteenth street people gazed at him curiously, and some were ill-bred enough to laugh. Their curiosity was lost upon him, however, for he was far away in reveries of the bright, happy times when editors accept everything that is offered without even asking ambitious young authors to ruthlessly cut manuseript "to satisfy our readers." He wandered into a crowded drug store. and, elbowing his way through the throngs of well-dressed women, asked for his favorite phosphate, and then continued his stroll until he reached the office of the Times. Then some one asked him why he did not dress before coming on the street. He looked up in mild amazement, sought a mirror, and then made a rush for the nearest haberdashery. Since then he has become possessor of a complete collection of ties, and when he sees his sister wearing the choicest specimens, his hand invariably seeks his collar band to see if he has again been neglectful.

This gives a much Marblehead boys have the reputation of being the worst in the state, and a worthy minister who went there to fill a vacant pulpit one Sunday had occasion to verify the truth of this, for onhis way to church he was unmercifully hooted and stoned. Filled with righteous indignation, the worthy divine remarked from the pulpit in mournful tones upon the depravity manifested by the old town's boys. Some time later he again visited the place, and this time he met with no insults and did not even see a single hoodium on his churchward walk. Being a just man he desired to praise as well as blame, and so he said that he was truly rejoiced to see that the youth had seen the error of their ways and had turned aside from the path of the evildoers. Thereupon arose a small boy in the gallery, who shricked forth in gleeful malignity: "Don't you believe it. They've just gone down to Barnegat to stone a funeral, and when they come back won't you catch it!"

A well-dressed woman, leading a frisky Skye terrier by a chain, walked into the ladies' calain of a Gloucester ferryboat the other day. As soon as she had seated herself the Skye terrier with blinking eyes crawled under the seat and proceeded to go to sleep.

A well-dressed Gloucesterite, carrying a small market basket, entered the ladies' cabin and deposited his 180 pounds of avoirdupois in the next seat to the woman with the Skye terrier. He shoved his basket under the seat, and, without drawing a newspaper from his pocket, settled himself to read.

The boat was moving from the slip, when suddenly the woman began to wriggle. She toyed impatiently with her shirts, and, in a stage whisper audible to those nearest her, said: "Don't be rude, Fido," and gave the dog chain a little jerk. A moment later she turned pale, and, giving the chain a hard jerk, said, screechingly: "Lie down, Fido; behave yourself, sir!" The passengers smiled, and the woman gasped. She jumped up with a shriek that would have done credit to a Sioux Indian, and began to strike her skirts and dance about as if executing a Comanche war dance. As she and the dog swung round the cabin the animal resembled a rag pin wheel just set off.

The other passengers had by this time become intensely interested in the performance and stared at the woman in open-eyed wonder. An idea suddenly struck the well-dressed Gloucesterite. He reached under the seat and calmly withdrew his basher, and as he raised the lid a look of wisdom overspread his rotund features. To him, at least, the mystery of the woman's actions was made plain.

THE WORK OF HOUSEKEEPING.

It May Be Made More Easy by Economical Arrangement

It is of no use pretending that house-keeping is easy; it isn't. It is hard work. However, there are ways of more or less alleviating the hardship, and some of them have been discovered by a family in the suburbs, where servants are generally unsatisfactory and uncertain of tenure. This particular household consists of a mother and two daughters. If they are left maidlessand that is no uncommon occurrence in village life-they perform the disagreeable feat known provincially as "doing one's own work," after a plan which they have evolved. One prepares the breakfast one morning, luncheon the next day, and dinner on the next. The other two clear away and wash the dishes. Thus each one is responsible for a different meal each day, and has no other concern except the mere menial labor. Whoever gets the breakfast does the upstairs work as well that day.

Another plan of this family, even when they have servants, is to divide the catering, seeing after the meals, etc., Speaking of boys reminds me, says at among themselves, so that it shall not They each take turns by the week in marketing, planning food and overseegreater variety for the table, and is good practice for the daughters us well as relief to the mother. Likewise it is an economical arrangement, Each manager makes it a point of pride to see how well she can run the house on the least possible sum, as there is the comparison every Saturday night with the accounts of the other two to spur her on to her best endeavors.-- Poston Budget-

CHINESE MAKE SLOW PROGRESS Though Ingenious, They Have Made Few

Inventions in Recent Years. In these times, when we can put a circle around the world in 70 days, this globe of ours seems a small enough place. But who conceives its real extent? Who can compass in his mind such a realm as China?

Denis Kearney used to tell us the Chinese were "moon-eyed lepers." My dear friend Bret Harte dubbed them heathens. Our enlightened government proscribes them as things accursed. Yet in that marvelous nation has gone on for immemorial years a civilization and an industry which were brilliant when Europe was a fen peopled by savages and America an undreamed of wilderness.

They had a literature before the Egyptians, and a wise one, too. They had printing when the European world was a chaos. They had art when it was an unknown thing, except, perhaps, to the Egyptians, and to them only in a primitive way. They were the inventors of glass, and centuries upon centuries before a European ship penetrated the Indian ocean their junks traded glassware to the ports of the Persian gulf. The Arabs, with cutting tools procured from the Chinese, engraved the Chinese glass with Arab emblems, and so stole the claim to invention.

When the Chinese commenced to make pottery is unknown. From pottery to porcelain, from porcelain to glazed porcelain the process went on. They cut jewels with miserable tools, which now almost baffle the mechanical ingenuity of Amsterdam. They made coral a jewel when Italy was unknown. They carved jade, an apparently worthless mineral, intractable and brittle, into the most ingenious of artistic forms. Their silks were the silks of the world, for there were no others. And through all these acons, with all their capricious changes of dynasty, they have remained the same people, perpetuating the feudal system of Europe, a nation of lords and serfs. But of late years, the vassals having been ground down so fine, the conditions having changed so much since the new world has grown up about them, the lords reluctantly part with their treasured heirlooms under the pressure of necessity.-The Collector.

For Vice-President, ARTHUR SEWALL,

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic electors of the State of New York are requested to unite in sending three delty gates and three alternates from each Assembly District to a State Convention, to be held at Buffalo, on Wednesday, Sept. 16th, 1896, at 12 o'dlock moon, for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates to be voted for at the ensuing general election, and to transact such other business as in ay properly come before the convention.

(Signed)

3. W. HINKLEY, Chairman, August 7, 1896. August 7, 1896.

An admirable summary of Bryan's speech of acceptance is published on the first page of this paper. Read it.

If the Democratic State Convention endorses the Chicago ticket, (and it will do so beyond the shadow of a doubt.) the leading gold bolters say it will be necessary to make independent State, Congressional and Assembly nominations. The zeal of new converts is proverbial, but it does not account for the anxiety of these new allies of McKinleyism to ruin the party which they can no longer rule. It's a case of false love turned to sudden hate.

BRYAN'S SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE. William J. Bryan's speech of acceptance delights his friends and confounds his enemies. It is moderate and conservative, direct and outspoken, leaving no doubt as the candidate's position on any of the issues of the campaign. It is calm. dispassionate and earnest, appealing to the reason by argument rather than to the imagination by brilliant rhetoric. Yet it is never dull and commonplace and even that part of it which deals with the dry facts of finance is bright and interesting and the reasons for the faith that is in the advocates of free coinage are so clearly and succincily stated that they cannot fail to carry conviction to those who have not made up their minds and closed their ears to argument and rea-

The speech rings throughout with confidence. It is the utterance of a man sure of the soundness of his position and of the righteousness and justice of his cause. and therefore sure of its ultimate success. He has nothing to excuse or apologize for, and the arguments that he uses are not in defense of his position, but, for the information of the people, that they may know just why he holds the views that he does on the great questions of the day.

The keynote of the speech is its sincere Americanism,—not the pinchb ck article allied to jingoism which would needlessly embroil this country in quarrels and wars with foreign nations, but genuine Americanism, born of faith in the greatness of this country, in the strength of its institutions, in the honesty and integrity of the masses or its people and in their ability, under Divine help and favor, to work out for themselves alone, without foreign help or interference, a great and glorious destiny. The speech could not have been made by a man who was not inspired by lofty patriotism and an abid-Ing trust in the American people, The speech will be measured by the effeet which it produces on the country. Its calminess and moderation disarm hostility, its cornestness and sincerity command respect and confidence, and no one can doubt that its influence will be widesprend and far reaching. It will win for Mr. Bryan the votes of thousands of citizens who have been halting between two opinions, but who will now east their political lot with the candidate of the plain people, whose candidacy stands for popular rights and the cause of the toilers and producers,-the wealth-makers of our land.

Pittsburg, Aug. 13-The darkness of night settled on Pittsburg at So'clock. this morning, frightening some people. A teriffic electric storm followed. lasting till noon, during which time 15, inches of rain fell. The sewers were choked and all the traction lines stopped for a while No injury or loss of life is reported.

At the hamler of Dehaven the darkness was something extraordinary, while the thunder, lightning and rain were teriffic, the small streams becoming raging rivers. The Appleton's residence was completely wrecked, and father, mother and four children were carried into the Alleghany River and drowned. Dwellings, stables, fences and domestic animals were carried off. Fully a dozen persons who are known to have been in the vicinity where the worst damage was done cannot be found, and it is feared they perished. Portions of Sharp burg and Lina were flooded and damaged.

SILVER AMONG THE FARMERS. (From the Ossego Palladium.)

Ex-Assemblyman George M. Sweet, of Oswego county, has come out strong for free silver and the election of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Sweet has been for many years one of the strongest Republicans in his district, has been honored with town and county office and been elected Member of Assembly. He is a rich farmer, and he has reached the conclusion that free silver is the nation's salvation, after having studied the subject for twelve years. Mr. Sweet is regarded at home and by his friends as a level-headed, conservative man; not given to doing things on impulse, and his action will have great weight in helping other Republicans in his town to reach a similar conclusion.

> WHY GOLD IS PREFERRED. From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

If gold should be treated by the governments of the world as silver has been treated, the effect upon the bullion value of gold would be precisely the same as has been witnessed in the case of silver. In other words, using silver alone as money, the bullion value of silver would stendily increase and the bullion value of gold, as measured in silver, would derosec. The silver dollar would then by the very men who now argue against it, be called the "honest" dollar and the gold dollar would be called the "dishonest" dollar. Soon after the great discoveries of gold in California and Australia in the early fifties the bond holders and security holders of that day started an agitation in favor of demonstizing gold. Chevalier, the French economist, wrote a book strongly advocating this course. The security holders are always consistent in their actions. They want scarce money, dear money. They have no love for gold particularly. If the production of gold should greatly increase in the future and the production of silver diminish every one of them would turn around and declare silver was the only proper money metal. People who would then want gold also used as money would be called "anarchists" and other opprobrious names.

Writer's horse, last April, was taken to Otisville and given a preliminary hearing before Justice Ketcham, Tuesday evening, at which he was identified as the man who had been seen loitering and begging about the village at the time of the thert. The hearing was adjourned to Friday in order to secure the attendance or persons from whom Barnes purchased oats after the horse was stolen, and Barnes was placed in Goshen jail for safe keeping. Barnes was at the Newburgh Alms House several days beforehis arrest. The Superintendent of the Alms House says the old man is suffering from consumptiou and he does not believe that he will live long enough to be tried for the crime with which h, is charged.

THE PROFESSOR'S NIDE

It Wasn't as Much Fun for the Boys as They Thought It Would Be.

The late Prof. W. H. Harrison, who for many years was at the head of a popular boys' school in Amelia county, Val, was much loved and respected by his many pupils, and had a rare faculty for managing them. "He wasn't forever nagging us, but, as some of us learned by experience, he let the punishment fit the crime." So said one of his former pupils, now a prominent lawyer in Richmond; and then he related the following story:

The professor was accustomed to ake a drive every sunny afternoon in a heavy, old-fashioned coach drawn by a large gray horse. One day, shortly after he had returned from his drive, half a dozen of the boys espied a coach standing in the driveway, where it had been left temporarily, and were seized with the idea that it would be great sport to secrete it.

Chuckling softly among themselves, they stole near to make sure that the colored driver was busied with the horses inside the stable. Then they took hold of the thills, three on one side and three on the other, and drew the coach out of the grounds and down a long hill into a pine grove. "Won't the 'Old Goat' be puzzled to know where his coach is?" said one fellow, with a laugh in which the others joined.

"Old Goat" was a term of affectionate familiarity which the boys applied to the professor behind his back, and which really savored nothing of dis-

The roguish youths indulged in jokes and merriment as they tugged the coach into a position out of which it would be difficult to remove it. This they had just accomplished when, to their consternation, Prof. Harrison put his head out of the coach window, his eyes twinkling, and said, in his dignified, slow way:

"Well, boys, you've had the fun of hauling me down here, and now I must request you to haul me back again." Smiles fled, faces grew long, and the boys stood aghast.

There the matter ended, so far as the professor was concerned, for he never alluded to it again. The culprits on their part resolved never to mention it, but it was too good a story to keep .-- Youth's Companion.

FISH EATING GRASS.

Oregon Farmer Claims That Carp Are Deauding His Meadows.

A rancher whose place is on the bottom along the Willamette slough, below Holbrook Station, was in the city the other day to find out whether he had recourse to the United States fish commission for the introduction of carp into the rivers of this section.

He says these fish are destroying his meadows by eating his grass and grubbing up the roots. As the water overflows his meadow the carp follow it up in thousands, the small ones weighing about three pounds pushing their way up where the water is only three inches or so in depth and clearing off all vegetation, so that when the water recedes he will have mud flats in place of meadows.

He says that while looking at the fish cating his grass he got so mad that he took off his shoes and stockings and went out into the shallow water and attacked them with a hoe. He slashed a lot of them in two, but when the drove became alarmed and made for deep water they bumped their noses against his shins and came near knocking him off his feet, and his ankles are black and blue from the thumping he gots As for driving the carp away, he says he might as well have tried to sweep back the rise of the Columbia with a broom.-Portland Oregonian.

MERE MERCHANDISE.

Royal Favors Are Bestowed in Payment for Services Rendered.

The ordinary mortal when he travels bestows "tips" on servants and small presents of one kind and another upon those of higher position to whom he feels kindly disposed for favors received, but royalty has a different way of showing its gratitude. Almost every govereign has within his or her gift a decoration which is especially designed as a mark of personal favor. These decorations they distribute as they travel about in foreign countries and not infrequently to members of their own household when at home.

Singularly enough the queen of England has stood almost alone until recently as being without this decoration, but now she has filled the want by creating the Royal Victorian order. On her recent departure from Nice her majesty honored M. Arsene Henry, prefeet of the department of the maritime Alps, by conferring upon him the dignity of a knight grand cross of the new order. To the Comte de Malaussena. magor of Nice, the queen gave the cross and star of a knight commander, while the cross of a communion was conferred on M. Paoli, the officer of police charged ith safeguarding the Grand Hotel de Cimiez during the queen's residence

The insignia of the order can hardly be commended for artistic beauty. The cross is of white enamel of a by no means neutely pointed maltese pattern, the edges being beveled and gilt. The center is formed of an oval, enameled red, bearing the interlaced monogram: "V. R. I.," within a band enomeled dark blue, inscribed with the words 'Victoria" in gold letters and surmounted by a royal crown in gold, the cushion red and the stones enameled in red and green. The star is shaped like that of the garter, being of eight points of nine rays, silver, the cross being placed upon it. The riband is dark blue bordered by two narrow bands of red separated by one of white.

It is probabe that the three honored gentlemen will not long be so lonely in their decorations, as sovereigns are usually disposed to be very open-handed with these crosses.-N. Y. Journal.

IN ANCIENT GOSHEN.

A Picasant Parlor Entertainment—Personal Mention-Lost, "Area of Low Pressure."

From a Special Correspondent. -A very pleasant parlor entertain them was given, on Tuesday evening, at the residence of Mr. Chas. Myers on Clure', street, for the benefit of the fresh air wid. The entertainment was opened by a piano duet played by Mrs. Wyker and Mrs. Elston. This was followed by vocal solos by Mrs. Casey, Mrs. Magruder and Mr. Epple, a quarterte sung by Mrs. Casev, Miss Madeline Murray and Messrs. Wyker and Scott and a reading and recitation by Rev. George Betts. All the numbers on the programme were exceedingly well rendered and heartily applaud ed. Rev. Mr. Betis read a scene from Charles O'Malley with much expression and, when encored, responded with a recitation. In spite of the intense heat, sabout a hundred people were present.

-Miss Julia Grier, of this village, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Cowdrey, at her home in Warwick.

-Wm. Lockwood, who has been spending his vacation with his family in Goshen, left on Monday for Trenton, N. J.

-Master Fred Wright, of New York, is the guest of his aunt, Mrs. E. L. Frost, at her home in this village.

-Mr. Dunn, the gentleman who sits up aloit and looks after the weather, predieted on Sunday that an "area of low pressure" was wandering about the country and would reach New York State on Monday, bringing with it refreshing coolness. While there are few, perhaps, who would recognize an "area .of low pressure" if they should happen to meet one, we cannot believe that it got here; it must have strayed or been lost or stolen on the way. Nobody could be blamed for laying violent hands on an area or anything else that could bring them any relief in such heat-heat that mobody could be expected to endure with any sort of equanimity, unless it were a salamander or the three Hebrew children; and even the latter in their seven times heated fiery furnace, although they andoubtedly had plenty of "torridity," didn't have 'humidity' or the like modma horrors to endure. In the mean time M. Dunn can sit up in his tower, like T afel's drock, and exclaim with him: ". mein Werther, sit above it all. I am al sie with the stars."

JAIN M'AULIFFE'S COMBINATION.

The Imense Heat Kept the Sports Away -Middletown's "Unknown" Did Not Appear.

The Jack McAuliffe athletic combination drew a very light house at the Casino last night, the receipts being less rthan $20. Even those who were prowided with complimentary tickets could not be induced to brave the heat, and but four deadhead tickets were received

The sparring bouts were very satisfac-Fory, and those present were well pleased with the exhibition.

The four round bout between an "unkown" or Middletown and Jack Me-Auliffe was declared off, owing to the failure of the unknown to put in an appearance. It is said the money promised the unknown for his appearance did not materialize, and the local scrapper declined to run the chances of a severe pounding unless the coin was deposited beforehand.

APPLE WHISKEY PROSPECTS.

Busy Times Ahead for Distilleries but Distillers Are Not Altogether Happy.

The large apple crop insures a busy season at every distillery in this county. Some distillers are, however, anything but satisfied with the outlook, for they say that they have large stocks of whiskey on hand for which there is a very limited demand, and that a big run, this year, will load them up with still larger stocks, which they may have to carry for an indefinite length of time. Some of these distillers propose to buy no apples. but to manufacture whiskey only on commission for farmers' account.

"A GREEN GOODS MAN." The Casino Season to Be Opened With a Farce Comedy.

In "A Green Goods' Man" are to be ound all the latest foibles and crazes of] the day. The new woman and the new man are cleverly satirized. The farce itself is a satire on the green goods and bunco swindles, and portrays the adventures of a Yankee farmer in New York City and his experiences with bunco men. The shell game, three-card monte, green goods and a number of other swindles are exposed in a truthful manner. In the cast are John L. Hanson, Barry Maxwell, Frank Gillett, Ed. West, Selby Tapsfield and the Misses Genevieve Dolow, Lillian Ackerman, Ray Filburn, Eva Lincoln, Dorothy Kendall, Willette and Georgie Chartress and Edwina, the sensational dancer.

AN "OBJECT LESSON" IN SILVER.

A Grocer's Cusuccessful Attempt to Convert a Silverite.

From the Elmira Gazette.

A southside grocer the other day attempted to give a silver man an "object lesson." The silver man offered a five dollar bill to pay for two loaveso bread. The grocer, with the professed purpose of 'giving him a dose of his own medicine" passed out the change in silver. The trouble with the object lesson, however, was that the grocer mistook the denomination of the bill and handed over the counter $9.80 instead of $4.80. The silver man is still unconverted.

THE LAWN PARTY, TO-NIGHT.

A Pleasant Time Assured All Who Attend.

The lawn party to be given, to-night, by the Daughters of the King of Grace Church, on the lawns of Mrs. J. L. Wiggins and Mrs. C. L. Merritt, on Highland avenue, will be a pleasant affair and all who attend may be assured of a good time. Refreshments of all kinds will be provided. A fine musical programme has been arranged and there will be recitations and other peasing features. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Taken to Thrall Hospital.

Col. Goshen, one of the advance agents of Main's circus, accompanied by his wife, arrived in this city, last night, from Delhi. Mrs. Goshen suffered terribly from the heat and fainted several times during the journey. On their arrival here they went to the Madison House, and Dr. Hardenburgh was called to attend the suffering woman. He afforded temporarily relief and, this morning, the sick woman was removed to Thrall Hospital.

Murder in Sussex County.

Joseph Morello, a laborer employed on the Caisteeer reservoir, is in Newton jail charged with the murder of a fellow employe. The men quarrelled while at work and later Morello met his antagonist and fired at him four times, three of the bullets taking effect and killing him instantly. He was at once arrested.

The last person executed in Sussex county was Frederick Crill, of the Camsteer neighborhood, for the murder of his daughter.

Fly Paper on His Feet.

From the Kingston Leader.

An uptown man who is greatly annoyed by the flies tickling his feet, which invariably protrude from under the sheets of his bed, got so mad the other morning that he vowed be would fix them. He procured two sheets of sticky fly paper, fastened one on each foot and then went to sleep with perfect satisfac-

OUR CITY STREETS.

Long Neglected and in a Disgraceful Condition-Some Long Needed Work Being Done at Last.

The Street Superintendent is doing some very badly needed work that has been too loug delayed-that of filling up the deep gutters washed in some of the hilly streets during the recent rains. The material is very good, consisting of slate and earth. Our streets have received so little attenti, n within the last two years that anything in that line is worthy of note and deserving of commendation.

It is perhaps not generally known, but there is and has been for some time, dissatisfaction upon the part of some members of the Common Council because of the neglect of the streets and the expenditure of the public funds in building sewers, etc.

The entire appropriation of last year was long ago exhausted and the city has borrowed fin anticipation of the collection of this year's taxes over $20,000, yet it is a fact admitted by everybody that our streets were never in worse condition than this year. The country roads are regarded by those who drive or ride over them on wheels as far superior to the most of the city streets.

We are pleased to see that even at this late day something is being done in the way of street repairs.

SOME FACTS ABOUT SILVER. By Prof. H. Emerson.

The closing of the Indian mints to free coinage of silver depreciated the value of silver 20 per cent, in a rew days.

Until free coinage wassuspended by the nited States, by Germany and by France, sixteen and one-half pounds of silver had never been worth, anywhere in the world, or at any time, less than one pound of gold, coined or uncoined.

The mere prospect of free coinnge in 1890 by the United States alone sent the value of uncoined silver bars to $1.21. per onnce, and made the bullion value of our dollar and of Mexican dollars and of all other silver dollars, everywhere in the world at least 93 cents. Every free coinage man believes and will adduce proof to show that since free coinage of silver was stopped, gold has doubled in value and that the only way to restore equity between borrower and creditor is to open the mints once more to free coinage of silver, thus off taking the intolerable strain on gold and restoring the former value of silver.

ENRICHING THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE This summer of grace is developing interesting poetical words and expressions. "Popocrais," the word used to designate the Populistic supporters of Bryan and free coimage, is now paired with its newly-coined antonym, "Plutowumps," which the New Haven Union is, pleased to evolve. Earlier in the summer the Prohibitionist factions agreed to disagree on lines which they began to term Broad Gange" and "Narrow Gange" principles. Correspondingly the splitting Populists are "Cratopops" and "Middleof-the-ronders., Truly American politics is a stimulus to the English language.
